Responding to Investors and Stakeholders

Has your airport recently received questions from stakeholders regarding ESG? If not, the questions are likely coming from investors and insurers. Come to this session to hear about how airports are developing their ESG materials, including perspectives from those that are starting from their sustainability reports, as well as airports starting from scratch. This session will also include an overview of the work that the ACI-NA cross-committee task group has undertaken on reporting and metrics.

Beyond the Runway: Airport Commercial Development

Airport properties accommodate different types of tenants and serve many different purposes. What is (and should be) FAA's role in airport development? What is the status of the Draft FAA Policy Regarding Processing Land Use Changes? Is Section 163 of the 2018 FAA Reauthorization Act (restricting FAA's authority over airport land use) helping airports compete in the commercial development marketplace? Will the new FAA Reauthorization Act change anything? What creative approaches can airports consider in lease models while adhering to their grant assurances? And how does an airport safeguard its rights and powers while allowing development on its land? This panel of attorneys will discuss property issues and policies and how airports can develop their land while maintaining the control they need.

Getting the Memo: Internal Communications and the Workforce of the Future

We have seen a rapid evolution in the way teams communicate and engage with the proliferation of more remote work options and an inter-generational workforce. With no shortage of communications tools and resources available, the real challenges are communicating with transparency, reaching the right audiences to make problem statements, actions, and goals known, and listening to feedback. From the c-suite to public relations to human resources, everyone has a role in internal communications. This session will focus on the best practices and principles of internal communications to align teams, drive effective action, and deliver results.
