Airport environmental issues from PFAS to resilience in assets Airport environmental issues continue to remain top-of-mind for airport CEOs, whether those are policy-related on PFAS and firefighting foam transition, energy demands and utility planning, or regulatory changes to NEPA and project permitting processes. Industry volatility and resiliency The business of airports continues to change at a rapid pace. Airlines are dealing with bankruptcies and mergers; carriers are dealing with changing consumer demand; advanced air mobility is promising to revolutionize regional mobility. How are airport CEOs thinking about and preparing for continued volatility in the year ahead?

 ACI-NA, in partnership with AirportNEXT, have created a new thought leadership project for the industry: a Futures Study on key trends and strategies for airports. More than 300 airport executives responded to the survey and evaluated 55 trends that will impact airports in the next three to five years. The AirportNEXT team will present takeaways from this work and facilitate an interactive session with participants to brainstorm strategies for addressing key challenges the industry will face.
- Introduction: Kevin M. Burke, President & CEO, ACI-NA*
- Paul Ouimet, Chairman, AirportNEXT Solutions*
Tom Ruth, President, AirportNEXT Solutions*
Alex Debelle, Vice President, Analysis and Data Science, AirportNEXT Solutions*

2:00 PM - 3:00 PM

CEO Leadership Roundtable (Estero Ballroom)

Airports only

In this session, airport CEOs will have an opportunity to exchange leadership lessons; new CEOs will be asked to share what's surprised them, what's going well, and what they wish they'd known before they started. All participants will be able to exchange ideas openly and confidentially, including how they are navigating the management of workforce challenges.

4:00 PM - 5:00 PM

Happy Hour (Royal Palm Courtyard)

Open to all attendees
